The European Heating Industry (EHI) releases the second edition of the Heating Market Report. On this occasion, EHI will host an online event on "European heating market trends: where do we stand and how to achieve the 2050 climate targets in buildings?". The event will take place online on Friday 18th February 2022 from 11:00am to 12:00hrs.

The Report outlines the trends in the European heating market: it includes country reports describing the impact of the COVID-19 pandemic, the latest heating innovation developed by the industry to support Europe's climate-neutrality goals for buildings. This event will be also an opportunity to exchange with policymakers on the market trends and how the regulatory framework can facilitate the achievement of the 2030 and 2050 climate targets in buildings.

The following will intervene (list not exhaustive):

- Klaus Jesse – Vaillant Group, Chairman of the European Heating Industry
- Peter Liese MEP– Member of the Environment Committee of the European Parliament
- Ivan Ivankovic – Head of Energy & Climate, City of Zagreb Office for Economy, Ecological Sustainability and Strategic Planning, Croatia TBC (Head of Energy & Climate, City of Zagreb)
- Federica Sabbati – EHI Secretary General
